Stewardship

South Jersey Catholic Ministries Appeal

Your Catholic Ministries Appeal gift helps our young men and our seminarians to become “men of prayer”, helps guide them as they discern if they are called, and then helps prepare them to stand “in the person of Christ” and serve their bride, the Church, through their preaching and teaching and most of all by celebrating the Sacraments.

You can still support the South Jersey Catholic Ministries Appeal online at www.camdendiocese.org/sjcma or send to Christ Our Light parish.

Diocesan delegation meets with lawmakers in Washington, D.C.

Editor's Note: These interviews took place between and after the closed-door meetings with New Jersey's federal lawmakers.

WASHINGTON — Delegates from the Diocese of Camden and the Archdiocese of Philadelphia traveled to the nation's capital March 5 to advocate for legislation that promotes human dignity and the protection of religious workers.

"The Gospel transcends party politics," Bishop Joseph Williams said as he walked the halls of Capitol Hill with 15 of the Diocese's pilgrims. "That's why our team is meeting with legislators on both sides of the aisle."

Bringing their experiences as priests, deacons, religious and lay leaders, the delegation met with U.S. Rep. Donald W. Norcross, (D-1st), U.S. Rep. Jefferson Van Drew (R-2nd), and a congressional staffer for U.S. Sen. Andy Kim.

All of the pilgrims brought with them first-hand experiences of working with and walking alongside of immigrants in their communities. They detailed honest stories of friendship and faith, service to the Church, persecution, loss and fear. In turn, the lawmakers and their staffers not only listened respectfully to these stories of encounter and took notes, but offered their own — some relating sincere, first-hand accounts of immigrants' dedication to their family and job, which benefits the community and economy. Other recounts, which were frank and forthright, told of violence at the hands of convicted criminals.

Much discussion among all parties revolved around border security. There was agreement that neither open borders nor persecution were solutions, but rather a middle ground where security and human dignity could meet.

"We are not advising for criminals [to come to the United States]," said Sister Maria de Jesus Herrera, MDPVM, Superior, and coordinator of religious education at Holy Cross Parish in Bridgeton.

A quarter of Bridgeton's population is foreign-born, and continues to rise.

"They don't have a voice," Sister Maria said of the men, women and children she serves. To meet with lawmakers on Capitol Hill, she said, gives her the opportunity to "share who these families are, to say that they exist, they have dignity, they are human beings."

Among the pilgrims' top priorities was to ask Congress to pursue immigration reform that ensures law enforcement efforts are targeted and humane, gives long-time residents an earned pathway to citizenship, addresses the root causes of forced migration, and considers family unity as a cornerstone to the U.S. system. They also asked that when it comes to immigration enforcement, steps be taken to ensure respect for sensitive locations, especially houses of worship as well as allow pastoral services for all detainees.

"The Catholic Church has always taught that faithful citizenship is not a privilege, but a duty we have as Christians — and then to bring our faith and hope and love into the public sphere as much as possible in a non-partisan way. Because these Gospel values can be salt and light to everybody in society. That's the hope, and that's why we're here," the Bishop said.....
